Quarterly fund commentary

Overall, credit assets struggled during the quarter. There were negative index returns across global high yield, global investment grade credit, and emerging markets. Floating rate securities were the one area of the market that maintained a positive return. During the quarter, the market faced a backdrop of increased market volatility, declines in equity prices, a rise in interest rates and concerns about a global trade war, particularly between the US and China. The volatility rose in early February, and continued to remain at elevated levels throughout the quarter. Global monetary policy is tightening (restricting credit and raising interest rates) yet well-absorbed by markets. Overall, we do not expect to see a material shift to a faster pace of tightening. In the near term, we are likely to remain in a higher volatility environment. Benign inflation will continue to allow global central bank policy to be gradual and flexible. Many countries are struggling to meet their inflation targets. On a regional basis, economic indicators continue to come in strong across the US and Europe. In this neutral environment, where growth is not a significant catalyst, markets are being driven by individual companies' trading activity. We continue to keep risk relatively low. Although financial conditions have tightened recently, markets are still operating under loose financial conditions (easy access to borrowing and low interest rates) as we are coming out of a period of extreme accommodative policy.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund uses derivatives (complex instruments) for investment purposes, which may result in the Fund being significantly leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund may hold a large amount of Asset Backed Securities (ABS) (complex instruments) as well as lower quality debt securities which may impact the liquidity of the fund under certain circumstances. The fund may invest in distressed securities which carry a significant risk of capital loss. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. Investments in debt instruments which are of lower credit quality may result in large fluctuations in the value of the Fund.

This information is available using the contact details of the issuer and is without charge. Further information on our products is available using the contact details shown. The fund yields shown are expressed as a % per annum of the current NAV of the fund. They are an estimate for the next 12 months, assuming that the fund's portfolio remains unchanged and there are no defaults or deferrals of coupon payments or capital repayments. Cash income is estimated coupons from bonds. The gross current yield is an indication of the expected cash income over the next 12 months. The gross redemption yield is a longer-term picture indicating expected annual total return. This means that in addition to expected cash income, it includes the amortised annual value of unrealised capital gains or losses of bond holdings currently held by the fund, calculated with reference to their current market price and expected redemption value made upon maturity of the bonds. Neither of the yields is guaranteed. Nor do they reflect the impact of the ongoing charges, the portfolio transaction costs or the entry charge of the fund. Investors may be subject to tax on distributions. Subscriptions of shares are only accepted on the basis of the most up to date legal offering documents.
