After a prolonged period of strong returns Asia ex Japan equity markets saw a marked pick-up in volatility in Q1, unsettled by the prospect of faster-than-expected interest rate hikes in the US and the escalating use of trade protectionism measures. Despite the market jitters, economic and corporate fundamentals remained solid in the region. The latest economic data from China came in stronger-than-expected, with resilient domestic consumption and industrial production. India's growth recovery remained on track, with a stable inflation outlook. We believe Asia will continue to be one of the fastest growing regions globally, thanks to favourable demographics and supportive policies. In terms of sector performance, healthcare and utilities led the market higher, with their earnings having greater exposure to domestic markets and being less sensitive to the economic cycle. The energy sector also fared better, benefiting from recovering commodity prices. For our investment strategy, we favour companies with sustainable earnings growth in sectors such as information technology, industrials, telecom and utilities.
