Quarterly fund commentary

It was a positive quarter for emerging European equity markets. Russia led the advance, drawing benefit from higher oil and gas prices. Sentiment towards Russia was also enhanced by a belief that relations between the country and the US are set to improve in 2017 following Trump's presidential election victory. Russia's inflation rate continued its downward trend in December with the annual CPI rate falling to 5.8%. While not enough to trigger any change in monetary policy, Russia's central bank said it would consider an opportunity to cut interest rates during the first half of 2017. The central bank also expects to see the economy return to growth next year. The fund is positioned to benefit from long-term growth opportunities in a region that we believe is undervalued by the market due to geopolitical tensions. The fund invests in Russia, Poland and other countries across the region. We seek to hold stakes in companies that we believe are well-run and have market positions that should allow them to deliver a high level of return on invested capital. The fund's diversified approach is reflected in sector positioning, which is spread across a broad variety of industries.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. The Fund may invest directly in Russia, which can involve significant risks to capital. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The fund invests in a limited number of holdings and is less diversified, and therefore this may result in large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus.
