Quarterly fund commentary

While the world blinked in surprise following Donald Trump's US presidential election win, it fuelled the sector rotation in global equity markets, away from defensive areas and into cyclicals. In Europe, the no-vote in the Italian referendum and the consequent resignation of Prime Minister Renzi had little effect on financial markets. The US Federal Reserve's decision to raise interest rates in mid-December had been expected by market participants. Turning to commodities, oil gained momentum in the second half of the quarter as major oil producers agreed on cutting output going forward. At the end of the year the portfolio's equity weighting was around 20.1%, the bond market exposure was approximately 9.3% and commodities accounted for 4.8%. In the team's view, the current outlook for global equities is positive. This is based on attractive valuations, positive trend and a low risk aversion. The outlook for government bonds is neutral to moderately negative. The forecast for commodities is slightly positive on average. In terms of performance - tactical allocations worked well, while stock selection and risk management detracted from the fund's return.
