Investment objective

The PowerShares FTSE Emerging Markets High Dividend Low Volatility UCITS ETF aims to provide investors with investment results which, before expenses, correspond to the price and yield performance of the FTSE Emerging High Dividend Low Volatility Net Total Return Index (a dual-factor index) in US dollar terms by holding, as far as practicable, all of the Index's constituents in their respective weighting. The portfolio follows the index's annual rebalancing (in March of each year).

Benchmark index description

The FTSE Emerging High Dividend Low Volatility Index ("the benchmark") measures the performance of the 100 least-volatile high dividend-yielding stocks in the FTSE Emerging Index while meeting diversification, volatility and tradability requirements (achieve a balance between dividend yield and volatility). All FTSE Emerging Index constituents are ranked in descending order of trailing 12 months dividend yields. The top 150 stocks are selected. Of these the 100 companies with the lowest volatility are selected to form the benchmark. The weight of each constituent is capped, such that the maximum individual company weight does not exceed 3% and the maximum ICB industry² weight does not exceed 25%.

Past and backtested performance is not a guide to future returns. Source: FTSE Russell®, as at 31.12.2016. Investors cannot invest in an index directly. The FTSE Emerging High Dividend Low Volatility Net Total Return Index returns represent backtested performance for the period 30.06.2007 to 26.04.2016 and actual performance from 27.04.2016, based on rules used in the creation of the index. Backtested performance does not represent actual performance and should not be interpreted as an indication of such performance; it is provided for illustration purposes only. Backtested performance has certain inherent limitations. For example, it ignores certain factors such as the trade timing, security liquidity and the fact that economic and market conditions in the future may differ significantly from those of the past. Accordingly, backtested performance is not a guide or an indicator of future returns.

Risk warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested.

As this is an emerging markets ETF, investors should be prepared to accept a higher degree of risk than for an ETF investing in the securities of issuers in other more established economies or developed countries, as difficulties in dealing, settlement and custody could arise.
