Quarterly fund commentary

Developed global equity markets continued to climb during the quarter with few exceptions. The US equity market started the quarter weak, while European and Asian equity markets performed well. However, the roles reversed mid-way through the reporting period, largely due to the surprise outcome of the US general election, as well as increased economic optimism stateside. Government bonds saw yields increase across all major markets due to a combination of factors. In the US, constant jawboning by the US Federal Reserve about the need for higher rates, accompanied by an interest rate hike in December and stronger than expected interest rate forecast, dampened demand. In Europe, the central bank has been discussing the likely tapering of policy accommodation. This resulted in yields in bunds and gilts shooting higher to levels that were only partially offset by demand later during the quarter, as investors sought shelter from the latest phase of Italian bank fears. Australian, Japanese and Canadian government bonds traded in sympathy with the other markets, ending one of the toughest quarters for bonds in recent memory. The behaviour of commodity prices was divided, with cyclical commodity sector enjoying gains while agricultural commodity fortunes were mixed and precious metals fell.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Whilst the overall risk of the fund intends to be consistent with that of a balanced portfolio of equity and debt securities, this may not be achieved. Commodities are generally considered to be high risk investments and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus.
